Large Number Attracted To Benefit Dinner of P.-T. A. Council

Announcement of the public dinner to be served under the auspices of the City P.-T. A. council in American Legion hall last evening brought a gratifying response, more than 200 teachers, business and professional people taking advantage of the invitation.

Proceeds from the event, in special charge of the playgrounds committee of the council, of which division Mrs. Roy S. Herten is chairman, will cover the last of the expenses required for the playground work accomplished this summer at the Bowl. Appreciation was expressed last evening for the able services of George Lackey, who directed approximately 100 boys ranging in age from 10 to 18 years, in ball games held in the Bowl this past summer, for which nine teams were organized each day. Special credit also was given Mrs. Guy A. Belcher for her handling of ticket sales for the dinner.

P.-T. A. council members serving as sponsors of last night's dinner event were: Mrs. Roy S. Herten, president; James H. Fulton, Guy A. Belcher, John J. Miller, Walter Fine, Mary B. Robertson, Harvey P. Riggie, George Ames, Golden Weston, Roy S. Herten, T. E. McBurney, Hugh Neighbour, Dale Griggs, F. H. Heine and Miss Hazel Nell Bemis.

D. U. V. Tent President Tells Experience at Springfield Meet

Highlights of the national G. A. R. encampment held in Springfield, Ill., last week were reviewed in a report given by Mrs. Lena G. Hewitt, president of the Santa Ana D. U. V. tent and delegates from the local organization, at the D. U. V. meeting in the Pythian hall Tuesday.

Particularly gratifying to the California-Nevada division, according to Mrs. Hewitt, was the presentation by the national order of a cup to this division for its feat in instituting the largest number of tents during the past year. Five tents were established in this period by the division, which captured the cup this year for the second time, the other occasion having been in 1925. Twenty-nine comrades and 13 daughters represented this state and Nevada.

Places Wreaths
Mrs. Hewitt joined with other D. U. V. women in placing the 250 wreaths sent by the tents of the nation upon the tomb of Lincoln. Six of these wreaths were sent by the California-Nevada division. The daughters also dedicated wreaths inside Lincoln's tomb; at the monument to Commander Stephenson, who organized the G. A. R. and at the grave of Ann Rutledge.

Santa Ana members also heard described the dedicating of a monumental statue to Lincoln, placed in a corner of the courthouse square at Springfield, the dedication being made by the national organization of the D. U. V.

Delegates were taken on a trip to Petersburg, from Springfield, Mrs. Hewitt related, with over 1000 people being served luncheon on a hilltop in the former city. At Petersburg delegates inspected a park where are to be found the buildings in which Lincoln kept store and which bear historical association with the name of Ann Rutledge.

Sees Regiment Flag
Two personal experiences in Springfield made Mrs. Hewitt's visit to that city especially memorable, she declared. One of these occurred when she entered a government building and discovered the two flags, national and regimental, which her father's regiment had carried in the war. The other incident had its setting in the First Presbyterian church at Springfield when Mrs. Hewitt entered for service one morning to hear a cousin of her father's and a Civil War comrade, the Rev. Harlan Carson of South Dakota, called upon for prayer. It was her first knowledge of her relative's presence in the audience.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIAN RULES OF LIFE

Text: 6:15-16; 2 Tim. 3:14-16. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 2.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. From our studies in the Old Testament during the past two quarters, we turn now to the New Testament to consider in a series of lessons the Christian standards of life. At the root of the Christian life is the idea of devotion; that is, an attitude of faith and worship toward God, manifested in an attitude of love and devotion to man.

Our thought upon the Christian's devotional life is centered in the words of Jesus in which he describes the true nature of prayer. It is not a matter of outward form and profession, or of ritual observance; it is a matter, rather, of the spirit and of the heart. Jesus not only gave this teaching concerning prayer, but he offered a model of true prayer. We have taken this model and to some measure have turned it into a form. It is important to remember that Jesus did not intend it as a piece of liturgy, though services are no reason why we should not use it in that way, but that he was suggesting in it a manner, and perhaps one should say the principles, of prayer.

So much has been written concerning the Lord's Prayer that any word of interpretation could add little to its exposition. One might point out in the prayer the two quarters, we turn now to the New Testament to consider in a series of lessons the Christian standards of life. At the root of the Christian life is the idea of devotion; that is, an attitude of faith and worship toward God, manifested in an attitude of love and devotion to man.

Our thought upon the Christian's devotional life is centered in the words of Jesus in which he describes the true nature of prayer. It is not a matter of outward form and profession, or of ritual observance; it is a matter, rather, of the spirit and of the heart. Jesus not only gave this teaching concerning prayer, but he offered a model of true prayer. We have taken this model and to some measure have turned it into a form. It is important to remember that Jesus did not intend it as a piece of liturgy, though services are no reason why we should not use it in that way, but that he was suggesting in it a manner, and

This seems so simple that it is amazing that anyone should not have perceived it; yet one of the hardest things that Jesus had to do in his early teaching of his disciples, and one of the most difficult things that the Church has had to accomplish in the later centuries of the Christian movement, has been to install in the minds, even of professed Christians, the fundamentally and essentially social nature of the religion that they profess.

From these vital words of Jesus we turn in our lesson to the words of a man who, perhaps above all other men, manifested in his practical life the devotional spirit of the Master. Paul is writing to the young man, Timothy, whom he considered his son in the faith. He reminds Timothy of the value for his devotional life and upbuilding of the Scriptures. The words that he wrote to Timothy are full of timely meaning and value for young folks today. The Scriptures are a storehouse of help and enlightenment for all who will search them, and it is true today, as the ancient times, that in the searching of the Scriptures one may find the goal of the quest of eternal life.

THE TINYTIMES

The friendly zoo man waved goodby and to the Tintins shouted, "I hope you all have a real fine time while on your flat ride." "The beasts I've hitched up are all right and they will pull with all their might," "Oh, gee, we hate to leave you," answered Windy, with a sigh.

But shortly they were traveling fast. They reached a curve and then, at last, the zoo man disappeared from sight behind some towering trees.

Then Scouty said, "I wonder where we're bound for? Gee, this ride is rare! Our tiny beasts must be real strong. They run along with ease."

"Well, give me credit," Duncy said. "Whenever I drive I use my head. Why, if I want to, I can make the little beasts stand still. Just pull the reins. That is the way." And then he heard another say, "Why don't you try it, Duncy? It will give us all a thrill."

So Duncy tried. Then, suddenly, the bunch was scared as scared could be. The little reins had broken. Duncy's pull was much too strong!

"Oh, gee, we're in for trouble now. We'll have to stop the beasts somehow," cried Scouty. "This is much too fast for us to move along."

Just then they got another scare. All of the frightened wild beasts got tangled in the dangling reins and soon they broke away. "Hey, don't leave us," one Tiny cried. "You're going to spoil this dandy ride." The beasts, however, disappeared. The Tintins had to stay.

They hung on tight for just a while and then brave Coppy, with a smile, suggested that they all jump off. "Let's try it, lads," said he.

"Oh, no!" snapped Scouty. "Don't do that. We're moving fast and we'd land flat. We're tight. It seems to me."

S. F. REALTY BOARD MAKES TAX PROTEST

Commenting on the withdrawal of the San Francisco Real Estate board from the California Real Estate association as a protest against the proposed school tax shift measure to be voted on in November, which is supported by the state body, Peter Hanson, president of the association has issued the following statement:

"We regret the action of the directors of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, reported in recent dispatches as voting to withdraw the board from our state association as a protest against property tax reduction amendment No. 9.

"The California Real Estate association is a voluntary statewide association of local boards, bound in a reciprocal membership agreement, ratified by the San Francisco Real Estate Board and association directors and by the approximately 100 other California boards in 1927. Harry B. Allen, a Realtor of San Francisco, was state president at the time.

"The state association is governed and its policies are determined by its state directors, meeting regularly in various parts of the state, each local board having one or more state directors. The San Francisco board has 11 state directors, including several past presidents of the state association.

"By individual ballot and at regular state director sessions held at Long Beach, Glendale, Pasadena, Modesto and Los Angeles, during the past year, the main principles of the present property tax reduction amendment have been upheld by an overwhelming majority of boards and their official state representatives. The present tax program was originated under the state presidency of D. D. Watson, then and now a member of the San Francisco Real Estate Board.

"The state association coordinating tax efforts with property owners, agricultural, educational, supervisory and other statewide groups, began over a year ago, continued at meetings held in San Bernardino, San Diego, San Jose, Fresno, Oakland, Berkeley and Sacramento.

"The San Francisco Real Estate Board's property owner dissent has never affiliated with the California Real Estate association, although its present and past chairmen joined with the California Real Estate association at the 1931 session of the legislature in urging the state to take over all costs of operating elementary and high schools and financing the same with a sales tax."

"Godliness With Contentment Is Great Gain."

"But Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment let us therewith be content. But they that will be rich—For the love of money is the root of all evil—But thou, O man of God, flee these things; follow after righteousness, Godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of faith."—1 Timothy, 6:6-12.

"Religion is the opiate of the people." So say the Russians, meaning by that, that religion keeps people satisfied with their lot in the social and economic scale; and it must be admitted to be true to a certain measure, so Russia is eliminating religion from the life of the people as fast as she can by fair means or foul. What will the soul life of Russia be like fifty years from today. Take conscience away from man and you have a diabolical creature; take religion, the builder of conscience, away from man and you have a floundering creature, confusing right and wrong. We have enough discontent here at home without looking at Russia, plenty of it right now.

The unemployed laborer is discontented with his lot, sees an abundance of food in the land, reads about immense quantities of it going to waste and yet he must beg his bread; the farmer is discontented with his lot, raises more than he can consume and yet is unable to exchange the surplus for the things that he needs to maintain his former standard of living; and the man of wealth is discontented with his lot because his income has decreased to such an extent that he is no longer able to frolic in the green pastures of luxury. Maybe God is leaving us to the mercy of the golden calf we have moulded; surely no one will say that God has not blessed us. Materially, the world is better than it ever was, more comforts, greater knowledge, education within the reach of all; luxuries of ten years ago have become necessities today, never before was there so much spent for charitable relief, yet discontent seems to fowl the very air we breathe. They are even using the Christian religion as a means to gain wealth, using the cloak of charity to cover greed for gold, using Christ and His Gospel to fill personal coffers, using pious words to put silver shekels in their palms; and the gullible gladly feed the sainted wolves. Are you surprised? Take note then of the why of the Apostle Paul's letter to Timothy. False prophets were using the very Cross and Gospel of Christ to gain wealth and Timothy lived where he could see their wealth and popularity; so Paul writes to him: "Godliness with contentment is great gain." The discontented will do well to read his letter, it may be a big help in analyzing and removing much of our discontent.

Godliness with contentment is great gain because of our very nature: "We brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out." Empty we came and empty we shall go out. There is enough genuine philosophy in those few commonplace words from Paul to keep three dozen philosophers busily for three years. You who work too hard so that your families can enjoy every luxury and privilege and can keep up with the Joneses and Smiths, read those words of Paul before you go to your doctor at the age of fifty and hear him say as he shakes his head: "a splendid machine, but the motor is burned out." Many a hard working and honest man is becoming acquainted with his family for the first time in his life; formerly he was too busy making money. Charge that to the depression. You who play too hard, who dance from pleasure to pleasure and frazzle your nerves with new thrills until nature comes to collect its compound interest, isn't this depression wonderful now that you no longer can get the wherewithal to follow your mad ways? For the first time in your life you have time for thought. Hear these words of Paul: "Godliness with contentment is great gain. We brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out. Having food and raiment, let us therewith be content."

"Godliness with contentment is great gain" because of the very nature of Godliness. It means the desire to be and to do what shall please God and the root and foundation of this Godliness is FAITH IN JESUS CHRIST. Paul does not mean a general Godliness or nicety, nor the mere practice of human ideals, but a God-given Godliness through Jesus Christ. Paul was an Apostle of Jesus Christ and found Godliness and contentment in laboring for Christ. Timothy, his understudy, was baptized into Christ and ordained to the ministry of Jesus Christ. Both Paul and Timothy desired to BE and DO that which would please God and Jesus said: "This is the will of God, that you believe on Him Whom He hath sent." The first requirement of Godliness is to BE a child of God through Jesus Christ and to DO the works of a child of God in Christ's name.

COME to CHURCH

A SERMONETTE

By REV. H. W. MEYER

Pastor Saint Peter Lutheran Church

ST. PETER LUTHERAN CHURCH

He who has this Christ-born Godliness will enjoy contentment — he will be satisfied with what God gives him and with what God asks of him — surely, that is a great gain. When reverses come, instead of discontent, there will be content; when afflictions come, instead of despondency, there will be comfort. Then it will be: "Thy will be done," and "we know that all things work for good to them that love God." Moses stood on the mountain heights and viewed the Promised Land toward which he had labored for many years, yet when God told him that he was not to enter, he was SATISFIED. Surely, "Godliness with contentment" was great gain.

After all, food and covering is all that we need — "having food and raiment, let us be therewith content". Very few men are in prison because they cheated or stole to have the ordinary necessities of life; most of them are there because they reached out for wealth and the gratification of sensuous pleasures. Godliness brings sufficient food and raiment. Will God not provide for his own? The lilies sew not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all of his glory was not arrayed like they; the ravens gather not into barns, yet they are abundantly fed. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you." "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt nor thieves break through to steal."

"What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" — what shall I do to have Godliness with contentment? "Sell all — give it to the poor — FOLLOW ME." The young man went away sorrowing, for he had great riches. Rich men are so often just like that, welded to their riches so completely that it is hard to tell where the metal leaves off and the flesh begins. But Paul writes about those that "will to be rich" and there, my brethren, you who are not counted with the rich, there you have an accusation which touches most of us — the desire to be rich. Why do you desire riches? Is it to be helpful to your fellowmen? Or is it to satisfy your fleshly lusts. Hear what the Apostle has to say: "They that will be rich FALL INTO TEMPTATION AND A SNARE AND INTO MANY FOOLISH AND HURTFUL LUSTS, WHICH DROWN MEN IN DESTRUCTION AND PERDITION." We have many prominent men, who were revered and trusted in their communities, now boarded with the state for a period of one to ten years. Nothing especially wrong with them, except that they desired to be rich and, so desiring, fell into temptation and a SNARE. Many of our welfare beneficiaries were plundered of their life savings by these "will to be rich" schemers and, in turn, many of these plundered folk know deep down in their heart that the reason they were so easily robbed was that they desired to be rich, too. "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." The "Rich Fool" of the parable obtained his riches in an honest way; God blessed him with the fruit of the field, yet when he surveyed his blessings all he could say was: "Soul, thou hast much goods for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry." Jesus called him a fool — one who is foolish in his planning and reckoning; and in our text, Paul speaks of foolish and hurtful lusts. "What shall it profit a man, if he gains the whole world and lose his own soul; and what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Biblically, spiritually, and morally, GODLINESS — the desire to be and do what God wants of us — with CONTENTMENT — satisfied with what God gives us and asks of us — is GREAT GAIN.

Women Clubs Weddings

Girls Elect Officers And Hold Swimming Carnival

Girl Scouts of the city held two meetings of special interest recently, a business session and election of officers yesterday and a carnival swimming meet on a previous day. Yesterday's session was held in the clubhouse on Richland avenue.

Officers named were the Misses Frances Was, president; Josephine Butler, vice president; Charlotte Mock, secretary; Nancydel Russell, treasurer, and Jane Nalle, sergeant at arms. Charlotte Mock is song leader; Mildred Kemper, chairman of the camp savings fund; Jean McAuley chairman of the program committee. The Misses Margaret Rutan, Josephine Butler, Carol Jean Brinkerhoff and Elaine Tubbs were appointed members of a committee to look up possible names for the Scout troop.

Friday marked the beginning of a new year for the girls, for they had received record blanks, regulation records and study books from headquarters, all of which are to be used in carrying out their program for the new term.

A special guest at the meeting was Doris Cave. Some of the time was spent in arranging the clubhouse, whose store of accessories includes two new and bright table scarfs contributed by the girls.

Although the troop plans to have a Halloween party, no date has been set for the event.

Swimming Meet

At an earlier date, the girls held a swimming meet in the Y. M. C. A. pool. The event was truly a water carnival, with the clear pool reflecting the gay colored balloons used in some of the races; the lighted candles used in others, and all the while showing the graceful motions made by the girls as they competed the various events.

In the 20 yard free style race for high school girls, Charlotte Mock, Mildred Kemper and Barbara Rowland won first, second and third places. In the same event for junior high school Girl Scouts, Irene Noble, Jane Nalle and Josephine Butler held the three high places. The same trio of high school girls who won the 20 yard free style won the 20 yard back stroke.

A contest for small girls who walked in the water was won by Marguerite McCarty, Lydia Elliott and Helen Herren, first, second and third high winners. In a balloon walking race for the small girls, Lydia Elliott, Helen Herren and Dorothy Ashford were the three winners. A balloon swimming contest for high school girls was won by Mildred Kemper, Charlotte Mock and Barbara Rowland. The same event for junior high school students was won by Lura May Kent, first; Jane Nalle, Josephine Butler and Irene Noble, second.

A candle swimming race for high school girls was won by Charlotte Mock, Mildred Kemper and Barbara Rowland; for junior high school girls, by Irene Noble and Lura May Kent, first; Josephine Butler and Virginia Waters, second; Jane Nalle and Nancydel Russell, third.

Following the meet, R. Russick coached the group in diving.

Girls who helped with the meet were Nancy White, scorekeeper; Margaret Rutan, Jean Russick, Marjorie McCune, Margaret Glockner, judges. Mrs. Russick is advisor. A large group of parents and friends attended the swimming contests.

Guests From This City At Bridge Function In Anaheim Home

Guests from Santa Ana were charmingly entertained Thursday evening at an informal bridge affair given by Miss Grace Jackson in her home at 217 East Broadway in Anaheim. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. T. W. Jackson.

Petunias in lavender and purples provided graceful decoration, arranged in bouquets about the room where card tables were laid for the bridge tournament.

Miss Jackson presented the attractive prizes she had procured for bridge winners to Miss Hattie Wall and Miss Charlotte Harnois, whose scores entitled them to first and second awards, respectively. Sharing the card entertainment were the Misses Beulah Dudgeon, Ruth DuBois, Hattie Belle Wall, Louise Bryant, Dorothy Dresser, Katherine Spicer, Charlotte Harnois, Charlene Schwartz, Dorothy Lutz, Bernice Summers, Marie Smith, the hostess, Miss Grace Jackson, and her sister, Miss Stella Jackson.

Sorority Pledges Seven Candidates at Service In Majors Residence

Seven girls were received into the Sigma Tau Psi sorority at pledging ceremonies conducted in the home of Miss Alyce Majors, 2412 Heliotrope drive, this week. The exercise proceeded an evening of bridge and the serving of a two-course supper by the hostess.

As president of the sorority Miss Majors officiated at the service, which admitted to the organization the Misses Valma King, Eleanor Richards, Betty Barkman, Mary Jane Spurgeon, Alice Hanson, Jeanne House and Mary Emil Majors.

Two guests in attendance were Miss Betty King and Miss Katherine Cornwell, both of this city, while members participating in the ceremony and bridge play were the Misses Jean Rowland, Betty Rowland, Jean Peacock, Beth Westcott, Lucy Holmes, Lucille Conaway, Agnita Wheeler, Carol House, Doris Goff, Eloise Wright, Virginia Berry, Anne Tarver, Louise Leck, Bethel Dickinson, Mary Read, Winifred Johnston, Mrs. Fred Gregory and Mrs. Francis Selway.

Many Guests Attend Royal Arch Dance And Program

With all details of the delightful affair conforming to the theme chosen for the evening, "Good Times Dance," Santa Ana chapter of the Royal Arch Masons entertained last night in Masonic temple, sharing with a large group of guests, all indications that prosperity is just around the corner.

Norm Morgan and his orchestra provided music for dancing. At 10 o'clock a pleasant interval took place, with Miss Lorene McMillan and little Trina Marie Baker, students of Claire Coutant, giving acrobatic and special dances. Miss Vera Getty, who returned recently from a tour with Fanchon and Marco, entertained with dances, after which Andi Manderi sang "Mother Machree" and "Caroline."

Guests continued dancing until a late hour, and were served punch during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Leonard, Mrs. J. H. Shaw, Mrs. Maynard, Miss Josephine Maynard and Mrs. Pearl McMillan were on the serving committee.

J. E. Miller, general chairman, had the assistance of J. Robert Leonard, Harry Griffith, John Siegel, W. T. Lambert and John H. Shaw, high priest of the chapter.

Dessert Bridge Party Attended By 75 Guests

Attended by about 75 guests, the dessert bridge party given yesterday afternoon by Damascus White Shrine in Masonic temple proved a most successful affair. A generous sum was raised for the treasury of the organization.

After the dainty dessert course had been served at flower-decked tables, guests adjourned to the lounge for the card games. Mrs. Dunstan and Mrs. Roy Ballard scored first and second high, while Mrs. Lundley was consoling. Mrs. J. W. Hancock received a special award.

The committee in charge of the affair included Mrs. Hugh Henry, general chairman and Mesdames Veda Berry, Hannah Stuessy, Florence Wright, Jennie Shippe, Lillian Dawson, Nellie Young, Loreta Pope, Mildred Peddy, Ince Orton, Nellie Pagenkopp, Verna Pagenkopp and Irene Wiley. The clever talents distributed for bridge play had been made by Mrs. Henrietta Roberts and Mrs. Eudora Vanaken.

The Shrine is planning another social affair to be held Friday evening, October 28 in Masonic temple. This will be a Halloween dance, with Mrs. Nye Martin as general chairman. She and her orchestra will furnish the music, and all interested are invited to attend.

YOUTH AND ROMANCE GO HAND IN HAND DOWN GLITTERING PATHWAY TO FUTURE

Mrs. Donald E. Hillman

Miss Maxine Storey

Mrs. George Sherry

MRS. DONALD HILLMAN

Santa Ana friends who are eager to extend their good wishes to Mrs. Donald E. Hillman upon her marriage, will be forced to wait until the return of Mr. and Mrs. Hillman from the extended honeymoon trip upon which they embarked this week, having delayed the journey until almost a year after their marriage. Mrs. Hillman will be remembered by a host of Santa Ana friends as Miss Rebecca Budrow, daughter of Madame Manuela V. Budrow-Rafferty, and is a granddaughter of Mrs. B. B. Budrow, 1119 Spurgeon street. Mr. Hillman is the son of Mrs. Mary Hillman of South Van Ness avenue. The young people, both of whom attended Santa Ana high school and junior college, were wedded in Mexico on November 7, 1931, but have kept their marriage a secret in the intervening months. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

MISS MAXINE STOREY

Although studies and campus activities at Tustin union high school demand much of her time, Miss Maxine Storey, charming young daughter of the late William Storey, Honeyuckle Lodge, Cliff drive, Laguna Beach, still finds time to give to dramatic interests. She is to play the lead in "Fanfare," the musical play written by John and Don Rox of Our Village, and now in rehearsal for presentation October 7 and 8, as a Laguna Beach P. T. A. benefit. The play will be given in the school auditorium in the Village, and is being directed by Charles F. ("Chuck") Reiser, noted picture director of Hollywood, who has a Laguna Beach home, and who gives his time when at the Village, to the play and its problems. Miss Storey has charge of the feature page on the Tustin high school paper, the "Broadcaster," and also is one of the editors of the school annual, "The Auditor."

MISS CORNELIA BODE

It was with a world of interest that friends learned recently of the betrothal of Miss Cornelia Bode, one of the most charming girls of Orange, and Bonney Sylvester Jr. of Santa Ana, and their plans for a November wedding. Miss Bode is the daughter of the Rev. A. C. Bode, pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, and Mrs. Bode, 171 South Center street, Orange, and is in the clerical department of the Santa Ana Building and Loan association. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bonney Sylvester of Escondido, and like his pretty bride-elect, is a member of the staff of the Building and Loan association of this city. The engagement of the young people was announced at a bridge party of unusual attractive appointments given in mid-September in the Bode home, but no definite wedding date was revealed beyond the chosen month of November.

MRS. GEORGE SHERRY

It has been almost a month since Mr. and Mrs. George Sherry returned from their honeymoon trip spent in a Southern California mountain resort, and established their home in Costa Mesa, where they both had lived previously to their marriage. The ceremony was an unusually impressive one, taking place in the Community church of their home city on Sunday, August 28. The bride was formerly Miss Mildred Alyce Bode, daughter of Mrs. Leona Bode, 527 Balboa avenue, Costa Mesa, and has many friends in this city, where she was employed for some time in the office of May-Bennis company. The Rev. J. S. Norvell of South Pasadena performed the wedding rites, for which the bride wore the traditional white costume, with princess veil arranged in cap effect with orange blossoms. About 50 guests attended the reception held after the ceremony in the home of Mrs. Leona Bode.

Radio Announcement Reveals News of Betrothal

It was by radio, that invention of the twentieth century, that guests last night in the Guy Belcher home, 410 West Second street, heard the newest version of the oldest story, the news of a betrothal of much interest to this particular group, because the young people were Miss Ruby Belcher, daughter of the home, and Charles W. Jones of South Pasadena.

Guests arriving to enjoy the evening's hospitality, found that a bistro contest was to be preceded by a simulated radio program, with the artists presenting their numbers by means of a most convincing microphone. Miss June Arnold gave several pleasing readings, and Miss Edna Hearn sang popular German songs to piano accompaniments played by Miss Elizabeth Mateer, who also added piano solos to the "studio program."

Guests entered into the spirit of the evening and were enjoying the "radio program" completely, when suddenly they realized that Miss Arnold, who had just finished place to the actual KIRBB program, and the local radio station was announcing the betrothal of their hostess, Miss Belcher, and Mr. Jones.

An interval of congratulations ensued, and then before guests turned their attention to the bistro, they heard Miss Hearn tell interesting experiences of her summer in Europe, and saw the quaint dolls, each in native costume, which represented countries she had visited. One in particular, afforded much amusement because of its power to shake or nod its head in reply to humorous questions propounded.

The colorful dabbles and gladdies used in decking the home for the pleasant evening, were supplemented by gay little scarlet hearts at the refreshment hour, when Mrs. Belcher assisted her daughter in serving an appetizing menu. Bunko prizes were presented at this time, to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones for high score, and Miss Elizabeth Mateer, low.

Miss Belcher and Mr. Jones have not yet revealed the date at which they will be married. The friends to whom they disclosed their betrothal news so pleasantly, included in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Guy Belcher, Miss Mary Jane Belcher, and Guy Belcher Jr., of the home, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Y. C. Todd of Southgate; Miss Vera Thompson and Robert Freeman, Pasadena; Miss Pauline Prescott, Huntington Beach; Elroy Martyn, Los Angeles; the Miss Mary Mateer, Elizabeth Mateer, Florence Ulrich, Louisa Hampton, Edna Hearn, June Arnold, Mesdames Melvin Maxwell, Kenneth Maxwell and Ernest Smith, Santa Ana, with Miss Belcher and her fiancé, Mr. Jones, to complete the group enjoying the evening.

Miss Rebecca Budrow And Donald Hillman Wedded in Mexico

Announcement made today by Madame Manuela V. Budrow-Rafferty of Santa Ana and Los Angeles, of the marriage in November, 1931, of her daughter, Miss Rebecca Budrow, and Donald E. Hillman of South Van Ness avenue, came as a complete surprise to the countless friends in this community of the two families. The marriage took place in Mexico when Miss Budrow accompanied her mother on a trip into that country a year ago, to be joined there by her fiancé, Madame Budrow-Rafferty was the only confidant of the two young people, and she aided them in their wish to keep the romantic marriage a secret until they were ready to make the announcement.

Other relatives were notified later, but even their closest friends have remained unaware of the romance until Mr. and Mrs. Hillman completed plans for the deferred honeymoon trip, and after they left last Thursday for Chicago and New York, the announcement was made.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillman expected to be absent three weeks during which time they were to visit various cities of the east and return to California through Canada, stopping at Lake Louise and Vancouver then coming home by the coast route. After November 1 they will be at home to their friends at 637 South Serrano street, Los Angeles.

Following his graduation from Santa Ana high school, Donald Hillman attended junior college here, and later became identified with the American Express company of Los Angeles. He is now manager of the tour department of the Consolidated Ticket office of that city, and of the motion picture service department.

His bride followed her graduation from Santa Ana high school with two years at junior college, and completed her college training at Berkeley, where she was affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

Pretty Wedding Takes Place in Nearby Church

A very pretty wedding took place Thursday morning in the Tustin Presbyterian church, when Miss Bertha M. Perry of South Pasadena became the bride of Henry A. Chase of Pasadena. Mr. Chase is well known here, where he formerly made his home.

The bride was attired in a smart blue ensemble with matching accessories. She is a native of Tennessee, and for the past five years has made her home with her sister, Miss Holly Perry of South Pasadena.

Mr. Chase was a member of Company L prior to and during the Spanish-American war. He is the son of Mrs. Emma Chase of Pasadena, and a brother of Mrs. James Alexander of Santa Ana and Mrs. C. E. Logan of Tustin. He is employed in the directory department of the Pasadena post office.

JOHANN CRAMER

BY RUTH ANDREWS

The personality of a famous man ever commands both wonder and respect, regardless of the passing years. The great soul belongs not alone to his contemporaries, but the inspiration of his achievements and the miracle of his creative gifts linger on to stimulate a newer generation to higher aims when those who once knew him face to face have been long forgotten.

Of no type of creative genius is this more true than of the composer. Time mercilessly casts aside his lesser works, but what is of real worth endures fashion's caprices, ever contributing to oncoming youth its more priceless messages.

It has been aptly said that as there are the three great B's, Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms, in the history of piano music, so are there the three great C's, Clementi, Czerny, and Cramer, upon whose contribution to the groundwork of piano technique all subsequent progress during the past 150 years has been based.

Of this latter triumvirate, who dedicated their life energies to developing the fundamentals, the "bread-and-butter" basis of the pianist's art, and to whom the modern virtuoso owes so much, Cramer is somewhat less frequently praised than either his teacher Clementi or his contemporary, Czerny, since his works are more adapted to the advanced artist, than to the youthful musician, whose name is legion.

During his long lifetime of nearly a century, Cramer enjoyed a reputation both as a professional musician and as a business man, which anyone might well have envied. He triumphed equally in the varied roles of concert artist, composer and publisher, and through the influence of his genial talent and his genial, warm hearted personality, won for himself the title of "Glorious John," as well as the adoration of such immortal fellow composers as Haydn, Mendelssohn, Moscheles, and even the great Beethoven. Indeed, Beethoven praised Cramer's playing above all other of his contemporaries, whom he held of little worth.

Although Cramer was born in Mannheim, Germany, on February 24, 1771, of musical lineage, his parents transferred to London the following year, and his education and musical training were received in the English capital.

Musically precocious, young Cramer played the violin at four years of age, and soon showed a great talent for piano. At 12, he was studying with Clementi, and soon attained a wide reputation as a pianist. He entered upon the career as a professional concert pianist at 17, and played with great success in various European capitals, returning to his home in London at intervals.

For more than 30 years Cramer enjoyed a rare vogue as a virtuoso, being especially noted for the great delicacy of his touch and his singing tone. Both as a pianist and teacher, Cramer was a prime favorite in London, where he later achieved triumphs in another role, that of conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra.

During his long reign as a musical leader in the English center, Cramer introduced to the elite of London such gifted young artists as Mendelssohn and Franz Liszt, and even when he was well over 80 years of age, was still playing for the London public, who adored him. Much of his time during his last years was spent in Paris.

Cramer's music publishing house was founded in 1828. In this undertaking he was equally successful. Throughout his active life, he had also composed prolifically. Since so much of his work was adapted to a different generation it is not widely used today, but Cramer's Etudes, the flower of his creative genius, still enjoy a wide vogue, maintaining for their composer the immortal niche among the ranks of the few great originators of piano methods.

REORGANIZE TREBLE CLEF CLUB

With the opening of the fall season, definite plans are now under way for the reorganization of the Treble Clef Club, one of this section's outstanding choral organizations, which will in future be designated as the Cadman Choral Club. The popular women's chorus has played a prominent part in musical activities of this community for several seasons past, having appeared on many major musical programs, together with other organizations, as well as in annual concert series, on which occasion it has also featured prominent solo artists on its novel programs.

With the meeting of the club's new board of directors recently, prior to resuming weekly club rehearsals under the direction of William Clare Hall, reorganization of the club was planned. In view of the fact that the noted Southern California composer, Charles Wakefield Cadman, is especially interested in the activities of the choral organization, the change in the club's name was decided upon, and Mr. Cadman, who has a wide circle of friends in this city, was named as honorary president of the newly organized chorus.

A change in the customary presentation of the club's annual concert programs is also to be noted, with a series of three invitational concerts to be given during the current season. These will be sponsored by leading residents of Santa Ana and vicinity. Since every effort will be put forth to offer programs of memorable and outstanding quality, those familiar with the situation anticipate that the newly organized club will continue as an important asset to this community's cultural life.

service, the Ellis club has been recognized widely as one of the outstanding men's choirs in the country. For years Blechschmidt has been recognized as one of the ablest orchestra, choral and opera conductors of Germany. While residing in that country he won many triumphs as conductor of leading Hamburg opera houses, as well as of the Hamburg Symphony.

Rhodes Receives Post

Santa Ana friends of Ellis Rhodes, well known tenor and choral conductor, and formerly director of the Choral Union in this city, will be interested to learn of Mr. Rhodes' recent appointment to the post of music director of the Wilshire Boulevard Christian church in Los Angeles.

Mr. Rhodes is planning many novel changes, including enlargement of the church's present choir. Mrs. (Mildred Ware) Rhodes has also received an appointment as contralto soloist at the First Baptist church in Los Angeles.

Hymn Writer Dies

during the past seven years he has resided in Los Angeles.

New Operatic Venture

Paul Cremonesi announces a series of popular priced weekly performances of grand and light opera by resident singers, commencing in November. The organization is to be known as the People's Grand Opera company. It is planned to secure the support of 100 patron members, to ensure the success of the venture.

International Exchange Concerts

The object of the new organization is to promote international concerts of contemporary composers. The works selected for the concerts will then be presented in many European capitals and in the United States.

Henry Cowell, director of the Pan American Association of Composers, has been chosen as the American commissioner to select the American works for these programs.

INTERLUDE

By Sarah Bixby Smith

How still my house this twilight,
No sound without or in—
Just the ticking of an ancient clock
Upon the stair,
My bedroom fireplace
Is black and bare.

Now come my little children
A-creeching from their lair
In my heart.

Before a glowing fire
I hold a naked baby on my lap,
Happy baby
Kicking free of day's attire.
Bright eyes at my knee
Asks a story—
The firelight on his hair
Makes a shining glory.
From the bath comes shouts and splashing,
Boys scrubbing toes
And making soapy billows;
Now down the hall
They're dashing,
Racing, scuffling,
Firing pillows.

Quick, boys a kiss,
Good night.
Back into bed each one goes,
Into my heart tucked out of sight.
Turn on the light.
The past is gone,
It's now again.
The front door opens,
Here come my men.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Faraway by J. E. Priestly, published by Harper and Brothers.

The novel "Faraway" has not the whimsical charm of "Angel Pavement" and "The Good Companions." Possibly in those other two novels some of the charm was derived from the English life and customs portrayed, and to an English reader this book which has much in it of America will have the appeal those books had for us.

The story reminds one a bit of "Mr. Darby" for the central character "William Dursley, quite settled down at 40, has the yearning to go abroad which haunted "Mr. Darby." Dursley went adventuring.

The story is the rather shopworn treasure hunt theme with bizarre touches.

An uncle returns to William's home, which had been the family home, and dies there. Before his death he put William in the way of finding a huge deposit of pitchblende on an island in the South Seas. William must co-operate with two other individuals one of whom has the longitude of the island the other the latitude. William must get the three together before any one of them can find the island.

One of the two individuals lives in San Francisco, therefore William comes to America, crosses the continent, enjoys San Francisco and contacts certain types of Americans. It permits considerable "business" of America.

William stays at the Cliff hotel in San Francisco. There is a huge basket of luscious looking California fruit on the table of his room, the compliments of the manager. William tastes a pear.

According to Mr. Priestly it tasted like cotton wool and he didn't buy any more of the fruit. It is an interesting episode, contrary to human nature, for if one were to taste a delicious-looking pear which was tasteless the ordinary mortal would be sufficiently curious to discover whether all the rest of the good-looking fruit was contrary to expectation and would venture to taste some more whereupon he would have discovered the oranges at least were perfect.

P. T. Riley, whom William has come to San Francisco to discover, turns out to be a girl, the original P. T. having died, and a very modern American girl, though not typical. In the South Seas he comes in contact with some moving picture people so there is "business" of moving picture people.

It all ends by the individuals who had wanted to travel going home convinced that the best way for them to travel was to do it in books. Americans and moving picture people aren't as unusual to us as were "The Good Companions" or the characters in "Angel Pavement" maybe to the people in England they will be more so.

Adventures of a Novelist by Gertrude Atherton, published by Livewright, Inc.

"Adventures of a Novelist" is one of the remarkable books of this season. The unusual personality of Mrs. Atherton exudes from every sentence. There are many caustic remarks but no ill-bred exposures. She has lived a varied life. It would seem that she has developed the eighth art, the art of living, to a fine point.

The volume might well have been divided into two. Each would have had a separate unity, for Mrs. Atherton's childhood and early womanhood was spent in California while the latter outstanding events in the remainder of her life occurred elsewhere, in Europe, New York, London, Greece, Washington. She traveled in exclusive social and literary circles in a great many cities meeting practically all the celebrities, it seems, and recounting incidents which she learned of, and experienced.

Carl Van Vechten, she says, provided her into writing her experiences.

She doesn't spare herself in telling an interesting episode. She describes her mother as very beautiful, vivacious, flirtatious, fascinating, with a naturally brilliant mind and "not an atom of common sense." Mrs. Atherton, judging from certain episodes in her book must have resembled her mother in several ways. For example she tells of gluing her child's ears down lest they grow away from his head.

One cannot but respect Mrs. Atherton for the amount of research which she did for some of her books. She seems to have had a highly individual way of writing, too. When a book was in her mind about to be written she retired to a town, sometimes a village in France, sometimes a retreat in California and seeking lodging in a private home worked there until she had finished her book, at least its first draft.

There is much in the book of the Brahmas of "his penname" as Mrs. Atherton, herself of the Southern aristocracy, married into a proud family in whose veins ran Spanish blood.

Mrs. Atherton says that the maternal and domestic strains had been omitted from her makeup. There emerges from the book an unusual personality. Only an unusual personality would tell about her deceased husband being sent home from South America pickled in a barrel of rum, concealed under coconuts so that the sailors would not protest against the use to which their rations of rum had been diverted.

No more. A retelling of book has appeared since Isadora Duncan's life or Clara Sheridan's memoirs. This is infinitely longer, more varied and more genteel.

New Minds: New Men? by Thomas Woody, published by the MacMillan company.

From the book "Masses and Classes" in which the author points out that the way to progress is by means of experimentation we turn to "New Minds: New Men?" in which the author goes rather deeply into what is to the world at large an extensive experiment, namely Russia.

The author, visiting in Russia, became convinced that far from being intent on destroying everything the Soviets were intent on building something. The study which the author sets forth permits of no conclusion, he says that despite 12 years of study his observations must still be punctuated with an interrogation.

Delving into the moods and aims of education in Russia we come close to the aims of the Communists. Their manufacturing program, their housing projects, their agricultural development are all hampered by many factors extraneous to the will to promote the program. With education the aims are stated clearly, the children are pliable.

The children are being trained with the idea of fitting them to take over the Communist state still in the making. By studying their training we can arrive at the vision of the future Communist state which is dominating the program.

The particular angle of approach assumed by Mr. Woody is interesting. Those who know the slow fear-ridden and stupid Russian peasant of the old regime have scoffed at the idea that he could be fitted into an industrial regime, that he could learn to be a Communist, and a mechanic. And they have cited ample evidence. But on the other hand from the Russian people has come art, literature, music which strengthens one's faith in the Russian people.

This author has gone into an analysis of the people's re-education which shows a considerable light on the psychological aspect of the mass change in Russia, an aspect which is of vital importance to the ultimate success of their program.

Masses vs. Classes by Benjamin A. Mason, the California University Press.

This book has just been published by the California University Press at Westwood. It carries a preface "Vision and Reality" by Dr. Rolf Hoffman, Professor of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The book is an analysis of American economic conditions, briefly and clearly stated, logical, non-partisan. In the preface Dr. Hoffman outlines various Utopias which have intrigued men's minds through the ages. "The fundamental goal of hard times is the almost universal dread of being overtaken by poverty," says this author. "The problem is to drive fear from our midst by securing for everyone who is able to work the right to work, to pension him when he is too old to work, and to require everyone to spend his income as made, except that which is required for new capital account, to correspond with the increase of the productivity of labor."

Progress in other sciences says this author is made through experimentation. Freedom and facilities are accorded the scientist to experiment. In the same way experiment will point the way to constructive progress in economics. The author suggests that the unemployed offer a means of experiment. "With the unemployed we will try out this, that and the other scheme for social improvement and by so doing, we will only be fulfilling an absolute duty we owe to them."

Several other creative ideas are introduced in this slim little book which is worth any one's time to read.

Charles Wakefield Cadman, known far and wide for his charming songs and other compositions, was recently commissioned to write a Radio Opera for the National Broadcasting company.

This new work, entitled "The Willow Tree," will be heard Monday evening, October 3, over KFI, at 7:30 o'clock, the broadcast originating in New York.

Cadman is now enroute East where he will confer with Nelle Eberhardt, of Chicago, the librettist of this new work, as well as many other musical successes of Mr. Cadman's creation.
